

Oysters and Soup, every day, including Sundays, at Johnny Kireto's.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Long before the crimson sunset
Flashes on the farmhouse eaves;
Long before the mystic purple
Drops the mystic golden veils;
While the old clock on the mantel,
Tic, tic, tic, so drowsy goes
"Dear me, Jenny!" cries the grandma,
With her speck above her brows,
"Do be quiet, it's so early."
Lots of time to fetch the cows!

Shadows lengthen down the mountain,
And the swallows wing their round;
Sunlight flashes brightly
Over the daisy laden ground;
Aurora eyes are at the window
Looking down the meadow lane;
Tiny fingers softly tapping
On the silver window pane.
"Bless me, Jenny!" calls the grandma,
"There you peep in all the house,
No go, if you can't be quiet."
Go at once and fetch the cows!

No doubt many of our citizens will take advantage of this opportunity to visit the lake and enjoy the cool and bracing atmosphere of the north. The rate is exceedingly low and the tickets are good returning for 4 days.

Some of the boys set off a cannon firecracker under Bill Green's chair while sitting in front of the Court House, Monday afternoon, but it never moved him. The explosion was heard ten squares away. Bill smiled in a tired sort of way and went on thinking. William is great thinker, and when once wrapped in thought nothing can move him from his seat. One would suppose that if he would sit upon a tack there would be something efficacious in that, but there wouldn't. He has been a thinker too many years. He has sacrificed his sense of feeling to thought.

We Kick.

One day last week Alderman Waner, Schlaggrater and Parson Gould were taken out to the classic shades of Hen Peck, in a cab, by Street Commissioner Jurgensmier. These gentlemen, it will be remembered, compose the Street Committee of the city Council, and were there we judge, to attend to some duty. But why such extravagance? There is nothing in the Constitution of the United States, or the State of Ohio, either that warrants such prodigality, such a waste of the money of the horny handed tax payers of the city. A cab, indeed! Just think of it! If this sort of a thing is allowed to go on unquestioned, the next thing we know this aldermanic trio will have a coach and four, and a nigger driver. We kick because such proceedings are undemocratic. Mr. Waner has a handsome buggy, therefore, why not use it? If Parson Gould cannot walk that far, let him saddle up his calf and ride it out. He is not suffering from any ailment occasioned by excessive horse back riding during the war. Mr. Schlaggrater can borrow a boat and row up Goose Creek. It would not be so dignified as riding in a coach, but it would be economy, and these gentlemen were elected that the city might reap some of the benefits of retrenchment and not up on the liquor question as has been erroneously reported. We wouldn't be at all surprised if Alderman Gould from the 4th. ward, will be wanting to put gondolas on the canal next, and have them run at the expense of the city. He pastures his cow at the old fair grounds, and during the heat term transportation without money and without price would be a God send. We insist that all such extravagance cease at once. What we want is economy and reform.

The Great Cat Show.

A Circus as is a Circus, and an Unequaled Collection of Animals.

Charley Beck, Our Office Boy, Speaks a Word Regarding the Aggravation.

The cat show up in Mother-well's barn was a "jimmie." I was there. That was Friday.

At 1 o'clock P. M. the grand parade took place on Main street. It was 1300 in the sun, but she went off all the same. Crow Swartz and Harry Green rode on a buck board, but the rest of the boys pulled the animals. In the first wagon was a bird cage and in it 10 cats. There was a cage in the second wagon and it it were 7 cats, more or less. The rest of the procession was made up of boys playing drums and blowing fish horns. The weather was a little rough on the cats, but they lived through it. The parade skunked any other that was ever in the Queen City.

The show was up in the hay-mow of the barn. There were 62 boys and girls there and it got so hot that it kept two soups carrying water all the time. There wasn't any grand entree. Mon-sieurs Green, Stedem and Mother-well skinned a cat on the trap-eze. Tod Stedem hung on the trapeze by his toes and heels. Harry Green was doing the clown act and he tried to hang himself up by the heels, but they wasn't built that way, and he tumbled. Harry was encored, but didn't respond. Johnny Wellman and Bob Motherwell hung on by one toe, but that was not exciting enough. Nothing went but a tumble.

The next thing on the program was a drama called: "A New Hotel." Frank Elliott was the boss. He hired Harry Green as cook, on Harry's showing that he could bake hog's ears, canary bird's eyeballs, and color eggs. The drama ended in the barking of dogs and the blowing of horns, and the caving in of the partition wall. It was a fine play, because when they got through no one could tell what it was all about. They had another drama about as good as the first.

It was next announced that Harry Green, the animal tamer, would exhibit his trained cats. Just then Alma Green, Harry's sister, stepped in and stopped the show. She said these cats were hers, and they couldn't come out of the cage, because some of them might get away. When Alma finished her speech, the management weakened and said the show was over. Before the crowd left, the fellows said they would give a magic lantern show in the evening. Just then Ethel Acker fell out of the hay-mow and nearly killed herself, and that ended the entertainment.

That night Gov. Rochester, heard about the magic lantern, and as it was dry weather, and lots of houses around there, he thought it would be a bad time for a fire, so he gave the night police a pointer, and New Stedem broke up the convention.

The boys didn't have much chance to show their cats. Cats are common of course, but if the proprietor of the cats hadn't interfered, the boys would have showed that real, live cats are "daisies," when they turn themselves loose to have a time. Next moon, if the police don't interfere, the cat tamers will give another show. CHAS. BECK.

THE WILD MAN!

For the last week this community has been in a terrible commotion over the report that a wild man was roving about through the thickets and blackberry patches adjacent to this city.

Very many have been inclined to treat the report as a hoax, and indeed, we were inclined to believe ourselves for a time that it was some Republican candidate for the Senate or for the district from Athens or Fairfield doing penance by running naked through the red brush that covers the delectable hills. But evidence that seems unquarrelable sustains the report and there is no doubt but what an escaped lunatic or to say the least, some badly rattled crank is wandering through the woods adjacent to this city.

Some persons report that the man is nude, others that his wardrobe consists of a few rags that barely covers his nakedness. The latter part of last week he was seen near the residence of a Mr. Frasure in the Hocking settlement. Mrs. Frasure being at home alone, gave the alarm by ringing the farm-bell, when the intruder fled to the woods. Some days after he was seen by Ferdie Rempel on Col. Rempel's farm west of town and an attempt was made to run him down, but he escaped.

On Sunday Sheriff Gallagher and Deputy Sheriff Wright took a posse of men and tried to find some trace of the man, but failed.

Monday afternoon some member Rev. Hart's family hearing a noise in the orchard next to the cemetery saw a half-naked man high up in a tree feeding on green apples. The lady being alone, was so frightened, that she hastily closed the doors and failed to give the alarm, and the unknown is still on the tramp.

On Tuesday Billy Stofer, Bub Voria, Geo. Cline and Chris. Holl organized a hunt for the wild man. Late in the evening Geo. Cline informed our reporter that the man had been caught and chained to a tree on "Ellengown" Heights, but this, we found on investigation, was like Anthony Bartlow's tiger hunt, all a myth, and the man is still at large.

The small boy of course is largely interested in the wild man and the latest information from that source is that his big toes are not less than eight inches long, which leads us to believe that open exercise is having a happy effect on the wild man's constitution and adding largely to his size. At this writing all is quiet at the front. We hope next week to give a more comprehensive and perhaps fuller report of this strange case.

LATER—Bub Voria brought in a wild man last night but it was the wrong one. The stranger is thought to be Gay Brinkie, Republican candidate for Senator.

Test Of the Gas Well.

A partial test of the gas well here, was made last Monday. The well was plugged and after standing twenty minutes showed a pressure of sixty pounds to the square inch. When the well was finally opened and the gas fired, it exploded with a shock that shook the city.

Boring, it will be remembered, was suspended when a depth of 2125 feet had been reached. It was then determined to make a test of the first vein struck. To do this it was necessary to plug the well at a point just below where the gas was struck, and then to case the water off above.

At this writing the workmen have not been able to do this, until they do, nothing definite can be determined about the output of gas. The well as it stands now is practically drowned, and if the effort to shut off the water is not successful, a new well will be put down at once, and this vein fairly tested.

The location of the new well will likely be on Sam Westenhaver's place, just east of town.

We are still strong in our belief that an abundant and never failing supply of gas will be found between six and seven hundred feet, and are certain that every claim made by us for this vein was fully sustained by the partial test on Monday.

Yank McCarthy, we are pleased to note, has fully recovered his health, and is now employed by L. Hohman & Co., wholesale and retail dealers in fine whiskeys, brandies, wines and etc., at the old Christ Roller stand, in this city. Yank is head salesman, and his appearance again in charge of a first class sample room will be noted with pleasure by his many friends. For years he kept one of the most popular places in the city, and will no doubt take his old place as a leader. Call and see him.

For Sale.

Thirty head of two and three year old steers, some of them well broke and well matched. Also sixteen yoke four and five year old oxen, all in good condition. Address or call on S. D. MORGAN, Coalton, O.
